

Lori Miller Fox is a recognized playwright, primarily known for her dark, offbeat, sense of humor. Once called a female Harold Pinter, she was selected by London Playwrights as a 2023 Supported Writer for her play, Flies Without Honey. Her play, Good Riddance to Bad Rummage was shortlisted at the 2025 Heartland Festival. Match.Commoner was given an on-line reading through Keakalehua in 2025. Step On a Crack received a staged reading at Circle Theatre. Lori is a founding member of Playdate, a workshop for actors and playwrights, where her play Sometimes You Have To is currently being workshopped. Lori has also written several books published by Sterling Publishing.
